I. INTRODUCTION

The Review and Consolidation of Previous Travis County Survey Reports project was funded through a Fiscal Year 2016 Certified Local Government (CLG) grant from the Texas Historical Commission (THC) to the Travis County Historical Commission (TCHC). The project included two primary components:

(1) the review and consolidation of prior TCHC survey data into a single THC Access survey database and GIS mapping platform, and
(2) the survey of the remaining areas of Travis County that were not yet inventoried for historic resources.

The ultimate outcomes of the project were the provision of the data from all previous TCHC survey reports in one concise survey database and mapping component for conformity and ease of public access and future use, and the completion of a historic resources survey within areas of Travis County that were not previously included in prior surveys conducted for the TCHC, providing the same level of documentation and following the same criteria as previous TCHC survey reports.

A research design that identified the project scope, background research, review of previous survey reports, previously designated and identified resources, and proposed methodology for previous survey data consolidation and mapping as well as the survey of areas not yet inventoried was submitted to and approved by the THC in April 2017.

A total of seven previous TCHC reports, conducted over a period of years from 2007 through 2017, were included in the data review and consolidation effort. The surveys included portions of Travis County that were outside of the city limits of Austin or the City's Extra-Territorial Jurisdiction (ETJ). Additionally, at the request of the THC, nine TxDOT survey reports within Travis County were also reviewed. Resources that were listed or determined eligible by TxDOT for listing in the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP) or that were contributing to NRHP-eligible districts and were located outside of Austin city limits or the ETJ were also included in the data consolidation.

This report includes an overview of the TCHC and TxDOT survey data consolidation and the GIS mapping effort. The majority of the report, however, provides the results of the historic resources survey of properties located in areas previously un-inventoried in prior reports. This portion of the report is designed to serve as a guide for establishment of preservation priorities, potential National Register of Historic Places (NRHP) nominations, and areas that warrant further research. The report includes a description of the project areas, survey methodology, previously inventoried historic resources, NRHP evaluation criteria, preservation priority evaluations, historic contexts for the project areas, survey results, and recommendations for preservation priority, NRHP eligibility, and further research and survey efforts.

A historic-age resources inventory table, with photos of all surveyed resources, is included in Appendix A. THC survey forms for high priority (recommended NRHP eligible) and previously determined eligible properties were also generated (Appendix B), as well as project area figures (Appendix C) and survey maps of all documented properties (Appendix D). Digital images of high priority properties (on CD) will be provided to the THC. Resources that were not visible during the field survey were identified for further work (Appendix E).

Project Area Overview

For the historic resources survey of areas previously un-inventoried, the project areas include several non-contiguous portions of eastern and northeastern Travis County. These areas generally lie between I-35, SH 45 and Burnet County, SH 130, US Highway 290, and SH 71. A few additional sections are located further south in Travis County near I-35 and FM 1327. The areas encompass approximately 60 square miles (see Figure 1 in Appendix C).

The project areas include the current community of Pflugerville and areas spanning both sides of US Highway 290 between Manor and the City of Austin ETJ. Additional areas include a section of the county along the west side of FM 973 on the north side of the Colorado River, as well as a section on the south side of the river where the Colorado River makes a large bend near US Highway 183.

Both windshield and reconnaissance surveys were conducted for the previously un-inventoried areas. The windshield survey areas included several residential communities and streets of ca. 1960s and early 1970s houses, primarily reflecting Ranch-style and manufactured homes. The reconnaissance survey areas included an array of property types on parcels of varying size throughout the project areas.

II. METHODOLOGY – REVIEW AND CONSOLIDATION OF PREVIOUS SURVEY DATA AND MAPPING

Survey data from previous TCHC survey reports, TxDOT reports within Travis County, and TxDOT's GIS dataset for previously identified NRHP-listed and eligible resources was reviewed and consolidated into an Access database and a comprehensive GIS layer for mapping.

II.A. Previous TCHC Survey Reports

The previous TCHC survey reports for Travis County that were reviewed for the current project include the following:

- Manor (2007)
- Northeast Travis County (2010)
- Webberville and Vicinity (2012)
- Southeast Travis County (2014)
- Southwest Travis County (2015)
- Southwest-West Travis County (2016)
- Northwest Travis County (2017)

The TCHC surveys were produced by different historians over a ten-year period, and as a result of revised CLG/THC requirements and changing technology, the reports differ in formatting, mapping, and data collection. Earlier TCHC reports (prior to 2013) did not utilize THC's Access database for survey inventory, and not all of the previous survey inventories were mapped using GIS. The TCHC survey reports that were conducted prior to the required use of the THC's Access database included Manor, Northeast Travis County, and Webberville and Vicinity. An Access database was utilized for the Manor survey; however it was not the THC's Access database, so the information was not collected in the same format. The other remaining TCHC survey report data was collected utilizing the THC's Access database.

Additional TCHC reports have been completed but were not conducted at the reconnaissance-level and therefore do not have survey forms, integrity evaluations, or the same level of information. These reports include the African-American Rural Schools of Travis County, the African-American Settlement Survey, and the Mexican-American Settlement Survey. These reports were not addressed as part of the consolidation project. Furthermore, the TCHC's East Austin Historic Sites Inventory (Robertson Hill) report was also not included as part of the current consolidation project because the resources are located within the city limits of Austin.

The previous TCHC surveys reviewed for the current consolidation project included thousands of historic-age resources throughout Travis County with many high preservation priority and/or NRHP eligibility recommendations. The Manor Survey included twenty-four high-priority and fifteen NRHP-eligible resources as well as one potential historic district. Seven high-priority and NRHP-eligible resources were recommended in the Northeast Travis County Survey. Four NRHP-eligible resources were identified in the Webberville and Vicinity Survey. Forty-two high-priority resources and four potential districts were recommended in the Southeast Travis County Survey. Twenty-two NRHP-eligible resources and three potential districts were recommended in the Southwest Travis County Survey. Fifteen individual NRHP eligibility recommendations and one eligible district were identified in the Southwest-west Travis County Survey. The Northwest Travis County Survey NRHP recommendations included four proposed districts and fourteen individual NRHP-eligible resources (refer to Table 1 below).

Table 1. Previous TCHC Survey Report Results

TCHC Survey Name	Total Number of Inventoried Resources	High Priority/ NRHP Eligible	NRHP Eligible District
Manor	182	24 / 15	1
Northeast Travis County	221	7	n/a
Webberville & Vicinity	204	4	n/a
Southeast Travis County	499	42	4
Southwest Travis County	467	22	3
Southwest-west Travis County	156	15	1
Northwest Travis County	831	14	4

II.B. Previous TxDOT Survey Reports

In addition to the previous TCHC survey reports, the THC also provided copies of the following TxDOT survey reports within Travis County in pdf format for review:

- Historic Context for Southeast Travis County and Cultural Resources Survey for the New Austin Airport (1996)
- Section 106 Determination of Eligibility for RM 2244 Bee Cave Road from Loop 1 to Loop 360 (1998)
- SH 130 from I-35 North of Georgetown to I-10 near Seguin (2000)
- Loop 1 Extension from FM 734 to IH 35 (Proposed SH 45) (2000)
- Historic Structures Survey for Hill Country Galleria 2005 SH 71 South of RM 2244 to North of RM 620 (2005)
- Comparative Properties for the Bryson Farmstead Historic Resources Investigation (2005)
- Historic Resources Reconnaissance Survey Report for EA of Frate Barker Road from Manchaca Road to Brodie Lane (2007)
- Historic Resources Survey Report SH 71 W from Silvermine Dr to Uplands Ridge Dr. (2008)
- Reconnaissance-Level Survey NRHP Evaluations Loop 1 (Mopac): FM 734 (Parmer Lane) to the Cesar Chavez Interchange (2011)

The above referenced TxDOT reports were reviewed to determine if NRHP-listed or determined eligible resources were included within the prior TCHC survey reports. The following resources identified in the TxDOT reports were not included in previous TCHC survey reports and were part of the current survey project (see Table 2 and Figure 2 in Appendix C).

Table 2. TxDOT Survey Reports Identified NRHP-Listed or Eligible Resources not Included in the TCHC Survey Reports
Parcel ID	Resource Name	NRHP Status	NRHP Criteria	Period of Significance	Location
259037	Hill Family Cemetery	Eligible	B	ca. 1853–1940	Gregg Manor Road (northwest of SH 130 intersection)
236620	William Braxton Barr House	NRHP-listed and RTHL/OTHM	C	1870–1900	10463 Sprinkle
190392	El Rincon/Hornsby Cemeteries/ Centennial Markers	OTHM (Hornsby) / Eligible	A	1836–present	10696 FM 969 (3.3 miles off road)
298885	Ross Family Cemetery	Eligible	B	ca. 1885–1940	San Jose Avenue
852225	It's About Thyme Nursery (Dodson House)	Not Eligible*	A, B	ca. 1900	11726 Manchaca Road

* Previously determined not eligible in TxDOT survey but was reevaluated as part of the current survey effort as NRHP eligible

The SH 130 from I-35 North of Georgetown to I-10 near Seguin report (2000) included six NRHP-eligible or listed resources in Travis County that were largely outside of former TCHC survey areas. Two of the resources (Ceder House and Larry Beard House) are no longer standing. Three of the resources (Hill Family Cemetery, William Braxton Barr House, and El Rincon/Hornsby Cemeteries and three Centennial Markers) are located in areas outside of former TCHC surveys and outside of the city limits of Austin and the ETJ and were evaluated as part of the current survey consolidation project. The William Braxton Barr House is currently listed in the NRHP. The Ross Family Cemetery is located within the Southeast Travis County TCHC survey area but was not included in the report. It was also evaluated as part of the current survey effort (see Section VIII.A.).

The Historic Resources Reconnaissance Survey Report for EA of Frate Barker Road from Manchaca Road to Brodie Lane (2007) report identified one historic-age resource as not eligible (It's About Thyme Nursery). The property is located within the Southwest Travis County TCHC survey area but was not included in the report. However, the resource is significant as the former home of early African-American settlers Jack and Mary Dodson and was reevaluated for NRHP eligibility as part of the current project (see Section VIII.).

II.C. TxDOT GIS Dataset

In addition to previous TxDOT reports, the TxDOT GIS dataset of NRHP-listed and eligible resources identified in TxDOT surveys within Travis County was provided and included 42 individual resources and two NRHP-listed historic districts: Moore's Crossing and East Main Street (Pflugerville). These TxDOT-identified resources included only those located outside the city limits or extraterritorial jurisdiction of Austin. A small number of the resources in the GIS dataset provided by TxDOT were included in the above-referenced TxDOT and THC reports and were incorporated into the data consolidation effort (see Section II.B.). Some of the resources were identified in the THC's Historic Sites Atlas and are addressed in the survey section of the report (see Sections IV. and VIII.B.) Additionally, based on a review of Google maps, a small number of the 42 resources within the TxDOT GIS dataset were determined to no longer be extant and were not included in the current consolidation effort. The remaining resources, listed below in Table 3, are those identified by the TxDOT GIS that are outside of previous TCHC survey areas and that were evaluated as part of the current survey effort (see Figure 2 in Appendix C).

II.D. Consolidation of TCHC and TxDOT Survey Data and Mapping

Using an Access database template provided by the THC, all previously surveyed resources from the TCHC and TxDOT survey reports (identified in Sections II.A–II.C.) were consolidated into a single database. The data from those surveys that previously utilized THC's Access databases was uploaded directly into the consolidated database along with the corresponding photographs. For the surveys in which THC's Access database was not utilized, the data was exported from the existing Excel spreadsheets into Access. Photographs, if provided or available in jpg format, were also uploaded to the Access database. The resources in the consolidated database were identified by their previous survey area for ease of reference to past TCHC or TxDOT survey reports. For those resources included within the previous TxDOT reports, jpg images of each resource were created from the original pdf photo sheets. The database and digital copies of the photos will be provided to the THC and TCHC upon completion of the project and final approval of all deliverables by the THC.

The TxDOT-identified NRHP-listed or eligible resources noted above (refer to Tables 2 and 3) within areas not yet inventoried were field surveyed at the reconnaissance level and incorporated into the THC Access Database. Refer to Section VII. for further details on the historic resources survey effort.

The data from the previous TCHC and TxDOT survey reports, along with all newly surveyed resources, were consolidated into a GIS mapping platform. The GIS data includes the boundaries of the previous TCHC surveys, the boundaries of the city limits and ETJ of Austin, parcel ID numbers for each resource, and identification of those resources that are NRHP-listed, previously determined NRHP eligible, or recommended NRHP eligible. The GIS data will be provided to the THC and TCHC.

III. METHODOLOGY – SURVEY OF AREAS OF TRAVIS COUNTY NOT PREVIOUSLY INVENTORIED

III.A. Research Methodology

The methodology for the survey of those areas of the county not previously included in TCHC reports was a process of elimination to determine areas meriting survey efforts and areas that did not. Efforts were prioritized to identify survey areas based on historic development patterns and the presence and significance of extant resources.

Historic maps and aerial photography were reviewed to establish estimated decades of development and to determine areas that were most likely to contain historic resources. Specific emphasis was placed on agricultural farmsteads and residential, commercial, and industrial development of the mid-twentieth century and whether these resources remained extant on current aerial imagery. For those areas of Travis County not covered in previous TCHC reports, a list of historic-age properties was generated from data available through the Travis Central Appraisal District (CAD). While not entirely comprehensive or up-to-date, CAD data is a useful place to start in understanding development trends and periods and in generating field maps. In coordination with the THC, the historic-age cut-off date for individual resources was established as 1972 to include properties 45 years of age and older. A total of 660 resources constructed in or before 1972 were initially identified within the previously un-surveyed areas of Travis County. The resources were identified on a map with dots representing clusters of historic-age structures. The clusters of historic-age resources were divided into two categories on the map: those with year-built date of 1960 or earlier and those with year-built dates between 1961 and 1972 (see Figure 4 in Appendix C). All individual properties within the project areas built in or before 1972 were mapped on current aerial photography for use during the field surveys.

The largest concentration (57 percent) of resources dated to after 1960. A preliminary review of these concentrated areas using Google maps revealed a number of neighborhoods and clusters of residential streets characterized by ranch houses, some Minimal Traditional houses, and a small number of manufactured homes. The remaining 43 percent of the historic-age resources generally ranged in date from ca. 1900 to 1960 and reflected a variety of resource types, including houses, agricultural outbuildings, farmsteads, commercial structures, and a small number of historic-age bridges.

Prior to conducting field work, the resources with the earliest CAD year-built dates and those on large parcels where visibility was anticipated to be a challenge were further evaluated using Google maps and historic aerial imagery. Special emphasis was placed on determining the presence of potentially significant resources and outbuildings that might not be visible from the right of way or reflected within CAD year-built data.

Information from a variety of sources was reviewed to develop a general historic context for the project area. Community information was gathered from the Handbook of Texas Online, the Austin History Center subject files, newspaper articles, previous historic resources survey reports, and other publications. A review of the THC Historic Sites Atlas for previously designated historic resources, including NRHP-listed properties and districts, State Antiquities Landmarks (SALs), Recorded Texas

Historic Landmarks (RTHLs), Official Texas Historical Markers (OTHMs), and Historic Texas Cemeteries (HTCs), was undertaken for the project area.

Historic Travis County maps, available online through the Portal to Texas History by the University of North Texas Libraries and the Perry-Castañeda Library at the University of Texas at Austin, were analyzed to determine early settlement patterns and early communities within the survey area. Early land settlement maps as well as road maps of Travis County from the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries were also evaluated. Specific maps utilized included an 1898–1902 Map of Travis County Roads, a 1932 Topographic and Road Map of Travis County, and a 1958 General Highway Map Travis County Texas. Historic aerial photography was also reviewed. The results of this research effort are included in Section IV. Previously Identified Historic Resources.

TCHC Chair Bob Ward provided the contact information for historian Lanny Ottosen, who has researched extensively within Del Valle and the surrounding portions of Travis County. In numerous email correspondences, Mr. Ottosen provided a wealth of personal research, including deeds, maps, and photographs for four of the properties within the survey area. Further information is included in Sections VIII.B. and VIII.C., and materials provided by Mr. Ottosen are referenced throughout the report. Much gratitude is extended to Mr. Ottosen for sharing his research materials.

III.B. Survey Methodology

A windshield survey was conducted for several areas identified with high concentrations of 1960s and early 1970s-era structures to determine potential significance and the need for further survey. The windshield survey areas included several small residential communities and clusters of streets primarily characterized by ranch style houses and occasional manufactured homes that were not architecturally or historically significant. All of the windshield survey areas were evaluated as low priority and were not individually recorded or mapped.

For the majority of the survey area, a reconnaissance-level survey was undertaken to photo-document individual historic-age resources visible from the public right of way. Information about property type, architectural style, and initial integrity assessment were recorded in the field. Prior to conducting the fieldwork, CAD year-built data for properties within the reconnaissance survey area was downloaded into the THC survey database. Resources encountered during the field survey that appeared to be 45 years of age or older but that were not included on the CAD-generated list of historic-age properties were also photo-documented and mapped. Approximately ten additional historic-age resources were identified during the field survey and included in the survey database. The reconnaissance and windshield surveys were conducted by historian Elizabeth Porterfield between April and August 2017.

All resources inventoried during the reconnaissance survey were prioritized using the high, medium, and low levels described in Section V.D. Preservation Priorities based on their historical and/or architectural significance and integrity. This information was then entered into the THC survey database. A THC survey form was completed for those properties evaluated as high preservation priority (see Appendix B).

A number of the historic-age resources are located on large parcels with limited access and little to no visibility. Those resources that were not visible from the public right of way were noted on field maps. After completion of the reconnaissance survey (of all properties partially or wholly visible from the public right of way), a list of inaccessible/not visible properties was generated and included a total of 43 properties (see Appendix E).

III.C. Access and Right of Entry

The windshield and reconnaissance surveys were conducted from the public right of way. For those properties with fairly small setbacks, photo-documentation and evaluation of the entire property was undertaken. Other properties further from the edge of the pavement or not fully visible were also photographed from the public right of way to the extent possible. Those properties that were not visible from the public right of way were not photographed.

Lack of visibility and access were partially limiting factors during the field surveys, primarily due to large setbacks and the rural nature of portions of the reconnaissance survey area. The large parcels and multiple outbuildings in some of the survey areas posed limitations for photo-documentation, as many were located far from the public right of way or obscured by landscape features and trees. A telephoto lens was used to more adequately assess resources at greater distances from the public right of way. Gaining permission from property owners to access parcels during the field survey was beyond the scope of this survey. However, as noted previously, historian Lanny Ottosen provided significant information about four historic-age properties, three of which were largely not accessible.

IV. PREVIOUSLY IDENTIFIED HISTORIC RESOURCES

A search of the THC Historic Sites Atlas revealed nine OTHMs, two RTHLs, one NRHP district, one NRHP-listed individual resource, and 11 cemeteries in the project areas. One of the cemeteries is a designated HTC (see Table 4 below and Figure 3 in Appendix C).

V. EVALUATION CRITERIA

V.A. NRHP Evaluation Criteria

All resources within the reconnaissance survey area were evaluated for NRHP eligibility utilizing the following criteria. The NRHP Criteria for Evaluation state that: "the quality of significance in American history, architecture, archeology, engineering, and culture is present in districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that possess integrity of location, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association, and:

- Criterion A: That are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history;
- Criterion B: That are associated with the lives of significant persons in our past;
- Criterion C: That embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represent the work of a master, or that posses high artistic value, or that represent a significant and distinguished entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or
- Criterion D: That have yielded or may be likely to yield information important in history or prehistory."[1]

In addition to significance, eligible properties must also retain integrity. Integrity is defined by the U.S. Department of the Interior as "the ability of a property to convey its significance."[2] To retain historic integrity, a property must possess at least several, if not all, of the seven aspects of integrity, which include:

- "Location: the place where the historic property was constructed or the place where the historic event took place. This refers to whether a property has been moved or relocated since construction. A property is considered to have integrity of location if it was moved before or during its period of significance.
- Design: the composition of elements that constitute the form, plan, space, structure, and style of a property.
- Setting: the physical environment of a historic property that illustrates the character of the place.
- Materials: the physical elements that were combined or deposited during a particular period of time and in a particular pattern or configuration to form a historic property. A property must retain the key exterior materials dating from the period of its historic significance.
- Workmanship: the physical evidence of the crafts of a particular culture or people during any given period in history or prehistory.
- Feeling: a property's expression of the aesthetic or historic sense of a particular period of time.
- Association: the direct link between an important historic event or person and a historic property."[3]

V.B. NRHP Eligibility Guidelines for Historic Residential Suburbs (Windshield Survey)

Within the windshield survey areas where neighborhoods were evaluated for potential historic district eligibility, additional guidelines were utilized.

The National Park Service provides guidance for the evaluation of historic residential suburbs for eligibility for the NRHP as part of the National Register Bulletin, Historic Residential Suburbs: Guidelines for Evaluation and Documentation for the National Register of Historic Places. To recommend NRHP eligibility of each subdivision, historic significance must be defined, architectural integrity evaluated, and neighborhood boundaries determined. Once information is gathered that informs each of those items during the research and field survey phases, a comparative analysis helps to determine the relative significance of each neighborhood within the overall project area. The following factors were considered in the evaluation of 76 subdivisions within the northern survey area.

Historical significance:

- Age of subdivision – do extant houses represent one or several periods of development?
- Innovative conventions of community planning (marketing, deed restrictions, zoning, subdivision regulations)
- Association with significant periods and patterns of community development, important events in local, state, or national history, or with person(s) who have made important contributions to the area's prosperity or identity
- Relationship to transportation corridors
- Relationship to recreational opportunities
- Social history significance and the ability of the subdivision and its design to yield information on vernacular vacation or resort house types or patterns of domestic life as it relates to vacation or retirement homes

Architectural significance:

- Cohesiveness of development based on distinctive characteristics of design
- Design of physical features and spatial organization (layout of streets and pedestrian paths, arrangement of house lots)
- Planned amenities (restaurants, golf courses, marinas)
- Distinctive period of construction, method of construction, or work of noted architect(s)
- Embodiment of high artistic values in overall plan or design of elements (entrances, streets, homes, community spaces

V.C. NRHP Eligibility

All historic-age resources within the reconnaissance survey area were evaluated using the NRHP criteria in Section V.A. Resources located within cohesive areas or communities and those within the windshield survey area were evaluated for potential historic district eligibility using the criteria described in Section V.B. All resources that were visible from the public right of way were assessed for NRHP eligibility based on the four eligibility criteria described in Section V.A. The resources conveying significance and retaining integrity were identified as eligible for NRHP listing. Resources lacking known significance and/or integrity were identified as not eligible. Resources that were not visible from the public right of way or that could not be evaluated in their entirety were documented as undetermined. Following evaluation for NRHP eligibility, each historic-age resource was assigned a preservation priority rating, as discussed in Section V.D. Preservation Priorities below.

V.D. Preservation Priorities

After completion of the field surveys, each resource was assigned a preservation priority level of low, medium, or high based on observed integrity and significance of known historical associations. Low priority properties are those resources or areas that were determined not eligible for listing in the NRHP. Properties that clearly lacked integrity, were altered or deteriorated beyond recognition, or lacked overall significance were given a low priority rating. No further recommendations were provided for properties of low preservation priority. Medium priority properties and communities are those that could potentially be NRHP eligible or contributing to an NRHP-eligible district. The eligibility status of some of the individual properties evaluated remains undetermined pending further research and access for documentation; these properties are also considered to be of medium priority for preservation. High priority properties are those resources determined to be NRHP eligible individually or as a potential historic district based on the results of the research and survey efforts discussed herein.

- High: Resources recommended as individually eligible for listing in the NRHP
- Medium: Resources that have integrity but are not distinguished examples of a particular style or property type; resources that are potentially contributing to a historic district; or resources whose eligibility status is undetermined pending further research and documentation
- Low: Resources that are of historic age but that lack significance and/or integrity

VI. HISTORIC CONTEXT

The establishment of Austin in 1839 and Travis County in 1840 was preceded by Stephen F. Austin's "Little Colony" in Mina (later Bastrop).[4] In 1827, Austin received a land grant from Mexico to settle the area southeast of today's Travis County. Settlement of Austin's colony was slowed by the Texas Revolution in the 1830s and continued threats of raids by Native Americans, primarily Comanches. With independence from Mexico in 1836, the Republic of Texas selected the site of the small community of Waterloo along the Colorado River as the new capital.[5] Edwin Waller directed the original plan of the city of Austin as a 640-acre tract. By 1840, Austin boasted a population of 856 residents, of which 145 were slaves.[6] Annexation to the United States in 1845 and the establishment of Austin as the state capital spurred further growth of the county. From 1850 to 1860 the population of Travis County increased from 3,138 to 8,080, with 3,136 of the inhabitants as slaves. The majority of this growth was in the eastern part of the county.[7]

Travis County remained on the edge of the frontier in the 1860s with no railroads and few adequate roads. This would change in subsequent decades as rail lines made their way to Austin, including the Houston and Texas Central Railway (1871), International and Great Northern (1876), Austin and Northwestern Railroad (1882), and Missouri, Kansas, and Texas (MKT) line (1904).[8] Large numbers of immigrants also arrived in Travis County in the mid- to late nineteenth century, primarily from Germany and Sweden.[9] Other settlers emigrated from southern states. Many of these settlers established small communities and homesteads in central Travis County. An 1898–1902 map of Travis County reflects the dense network of roads, farms, and communities in eastern Travis County (see Illustration 1).

The current project area includes several non-contiguous areas within eastern and northeastern Travis County. A small number of mid- and late nineteenth-century settlement areas developed within these areas of Travis County, but the majority of the project area was historically utilized for farming, with scattered homesteads and large tracts of cultivated agricultural land.

Pflugerville is located within the northern portion of the project area and remains a cohesive community with significant recent suburban development. The town was established in 1860 by area resident William Bohls (1827–1907) who operated a store and post office from his home.[10] Henry Pfluger (1803–1867), for whom the town was named, had emigrated from Germany with his family in 1849 and settled on land just east of the present town in 1853.[11]

The community grew slowly in the late nineteenth century with the establishment of a school in 1872 and a Lutheran church in 1875. Louis Bohls, the son of William Bohls, served as post master when the official Pflugerville post office opened in 1893. The community remained small, with only 250 residents in the mid-1890s, but the population doubled after 1904 when the MKT railroad extended a line between Georgetown and Austin. Otto Pfluger, one of Henry Pfluger's sons, constructed two cotton gins between 1904 and 1909 and later an ice factory.[12] In 1913, H.H. Pfluger opened the Sky Dome Theater movie theater that operated until 1928.[13] Growth continued until after World War II, with the population again rising after Pflugerville was incorporated in the 1960s. In the 1980s, Pflugerville was reportedly one of the fastest growing communities in Texas. Today, Pflugerville is a bedroom community of Austin with significant suburban development, but the historic core of the community along E. and W. Pecan Street (FM 1325) between Railroad Avenue and 5th Street retains a large number of late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century residences and a small number of historic-age commercial buildings.[14]

Illustration 1. 1898–1902 Map of Travis County Roads reflecting the dense settlement of eastern Travis County[15]

In the early twentieth century during the era of Jim Crow laws and racial segregation, a small community for African Americans was established west of Pflugerville. Local farmer La Rue Noton subdivided lots within an acre of his land for purchase by African-American workers. The area was platted as the Colored Addition to Pflugerville. The plat consisted of a six-block area on the north side of W. Pecan Street between 1st and 2nd Streets (today's Russell Street and Caldwells Lane). The area remained sparsely developed throughout the twentieth century, but two churches and a school were established there, including the St. Mary's Missionary Baptist Church constructed in 1914 and St. Matthew's Missionary Baptist Church ca. 1920. An original 1910 school burned down in 1925 and was replaced by a two-room Rosenwald School in 1928. St. Matthew's Church and the Rosenwald School are no longer extant, but St. Mary's Missionary Baptist Church remains an active congregation in a recently constructed church building. An OTHM commemorates the history of the congregation.[16]

Located slightly south of Pflugerville was the former community of Dessau. The small rural community included a post office from 1886 to 1901 and a one-teacher school in 1907. The population was historically very low with no more than 50 residents during the mid-twentieth century. The only vestige of the community is today's Dessau Road.[17]

South of Dessau was the former community of Sprinkle, located at the intersection of today's Sprinkle, Cameron, and Springdale Roads between US Highway 290 and E. Parmer Lane. The community was established in the 1870s with the arrival of Erasmus Frederick Sprinkle from Virginia. He helped establish a post office in 1885, and by 1890 the small community boasted three churches, a school, and a general store. The area was primarily settled by farmers who raised cotton, and the construction of the MKT railroad with a stop in the town in 1904 initially spurred development. However, the population steadily declined in the early twentieth century. The post office and railroad stop were abandoned in the 1940s, and the population remained small with only twenty residents in the 1950s and 1960s.[18] Today, the area is characterized by scattered residences and retains a semi-rural feel. The most architecturally significant resource is the former William Braxton Barr House, an elaborate late nineteenth-century mansion that is NRHP listed and now serves as an event venue.

The former community of Gregg was also within the vicinity of the current project area. It was established ca. 1883 with the opening of a post office and named for resident William Gregg. In the 1890s, the small community had a general store and a cotton gin. The post office closed in 1902, and its former one-teacher school was consolidated with the Manor Independent School District in the 1940s.[19] The only remaining evidence of the former community is the Gregg Cemetery and three roads including Gregg Lane, Old Gregg Lane, and Gregg Manor Road.

By the mid-twentieth century much of eastern and northeastern Travis County remained rural in character with small, scattered communities and agricultural land. US Highway 290 traversed the county by this time, and a much larger network of rural roads provided greater connectivity to Austin (see Illustration 2).

In the southern section of the current project area within the horseshoe bend made by the Colorado River, the 1958 map referenced above identified the State School Farm Colony. The State School Farm Colony opened in 1934 for male residents of the Austin State School, which had opened in Austin in 1917 as the State Colony for the Feebleminded. Both facilities housed developmentally disabled residents. The State School Farm Colony, at that time in far rural eastern Travis County, was exclusively for men, and residents worked in farming operations. The campus buildings were located on the north side of the river at the intersection of today's FM 969 and Decker Lane. The farmlands, however, appear to have extended to the southern side of the river in the late 1950s within the current survey area. The facility closed in the 1990s, but the buildings remain standing, and the property is part of the KIPP Austin Academy of Letters campus. Although the buildings are outside of the current survey area, the farmlands identified on the 1958 map are within the survey area but were not accessible during fieldwork for the current project. A few small structures are visible on these parcels through Google images.

Today, while much of the current survey area remains undeveloped, other portions are marked by pockets of extensive modern twentieth-century residential and commercial development.

VII. SURVEY RESULTS

VII.A. Windshield Survey Results

Of the original 660 resources of historic age that were initially identified through CAD year built dates, 326 of those resources were located within areas that were evaluated at a windshield survey level. These areas were composed of small neighborhoods and clusters of streets of 1960s and early 1970s ranch style houses and manufactured homes, as well as a small number of individual scattered residences from this same period (see Illustrations 3–8 below and Figures 5-1 through 5-2 in Appendix C for a map of the windshield survey areas). A few of the resources were examples of Minimal Traditional style homes. None of the resources were architecturally significant, most lacked integrity, and the areas were not significant examples of mid-twentieth century residential or neighborhood design. None of the areas were eligible for NRHP listing based on lack of significance and/or integrity, and no further work is recommended at this time.

VII.B. Reconnaissance Survey Results

Of the remaining resources, 215 individual properties within the survey area were evaluated at a reconnaissance level. Approximately 43 of these properties were not accessible or sufficiently visible. The majority of resources were single-family homes dating from the early to mid-twentieth century, as well as barns, agricultural outbuildings, and a small number of commercial buildings and historic-age bridges. Many of the resources were located on large parcels with multiple outbuildings. The general character of the reconnaissance survey area varied, with large expanses remaining fairly rural in nature and large distances between resources. Other portions of the survey area had experienced extensive recent residential and commercial development.

A small number of significant early to late nineteenth-century resources were identified within the survey area primarily within the bend of the Colorado River north of Del Valle and in and around the town of Pflugerville. While the majority of surveyed resources have experienced various alterations that have undermined their architectural integrity, a small number of intact farmsteads and agricultural properties were identified.

Of the original 660 historic-age resources identified through CAD data, approximately 150 were located within the historic residential core of Pflugerville spanning both sides of W. Pecan Street between 5th Street and Railroad Avenue. Due to the number of historic-age resources present, the area was evaluated as a potential district. An initial windshield survey established a preliminary boundary area incorporating the 150 resources. Further evaluation was undertaken, and 75 resources were given a high or medium preservation priority rating and recommended as contributing to the potential district (see Table 6).

A number of cemeteries were previously documented within the reconnaissance survey area (see Tables 2 and 4). Three of the cemeteries were previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT, including the Hill Family Cemetery, the El Rincon/Hornsby Cemeteries, and the Ross Family Cemetery. For the most part, however, cemeteries are generally not eligible for NRHP listing. While the cemeteries within the reconnaissance survey area include burial grounds associated with early communities and both African Americans and Mexican Americans, the cemeteries that were visible typically lacked exceptional historic significance or distinctive architectural or design features. All of the cemeteries, with the exception of the above referenced three that were preciously determined NRHP eligible, were assigned a medium priority rating due to their association with early communities and because some were not visible to assess their architectural significance (see Maps 1–42 in Appendix D).

VIII. ELIGIBLE PROPERTIES

VIII.A. Previously Determined NRHP Eligible – TxDOT Survey Reports and TxDOT GIS Dataset

The three cemeteries that were previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT, including the Hill Family Cemetery, El Rincon/Hornsby Cemetery, and Ross Family Cemetery, were not visible or accessible during the field survey for the current project. Refer to Maps 1-42 in Appendix D for all surveyed resources.

Dodson House (Parcel 852225)

Image 1. Former Dodson House, now It's About Thyme Nursery

The house at 11726 Manchaca Road was previously identified by TxDOT in 2007 but was recommended not eligible at that time (refer to Table 2 and Section II.B. Previous TxDOT Survey Reports). The resource was also evaluated in the African-American Settlement Survey for its association with early African-American settlement of the Manchaca area. The house is historically significant as the former home of Jack and Mary Dodson, a nineteenth-century African-American couple and former slaves who came to the area around 1900. They established a meat market and molasses mill and constructed the home that remains standing today. The house is now part of a commercial nursery called It's About Thyme. The single-story, wood-clad house features a full shed-roof front porch and an asymmetrical roof line with a hipped roof at the north end and a gabled roof and chimney at the south end. Jack Dodson provided land in the community for Dodson Park, which was located near today's Manchaca Elementary School and was the site of yearly Juneteenth celebrations for many years.

The Dodsons were among many African Americans who began settling in the area after the Civil War and into the twentieth century. Other significant early African-American settlers in Manchaca and the vicinity included Ransom and Sarah Williams, Chatham Perry, the Alexanders, the Coats, and the Owens. The former Dodson House remains one of the few remaining resources in Manchaca that is directly associated with early African-American settlement. It was recommended NRHP eligible in the African-American Settlement Survey Report under Criterion A in the areas of community planning and development and ethnic heritage.

600 Paul Street – Bungalow (Parcel 274634)

Image 2. Airplane bungalow at 600 Paul Street, Pflugerville

The residence at 600 Paul Street in Pflugerville is a ca. 1915 Craftsman airplane bungalow that was previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. The property is located within a small four-block residential area off of E. Pecan Street that is separated from downtown and the main historic residential area of Pflugerville by the former rail road line that is now part of a walking trail. The house features the characteristic "pop-up" second floor over the main roofline, giving it an "airplane cockpit" appearance. The house has a hipped roof of composition shingles with a gabled front porch, original one-over-one-light wood sash windows with exterior multi-light wood screens, and replacement vinyl siding. Craftsman features include eave brackets and brick and wood Craftsman-style porch supports. Despite the vinyl siding, the resource retains integrity of design, workmanship, and feeling. It was determined NRHP eligible under Criterion C as a significant example of an early twentieth-century airplane bungalow.

102 Willow Street – Brick Bungalow (Parcel 274629)

Image 3. Brick bungalow at 102 Willow Street, Pflugerville

The residence at 102 Willow Street in Pflugerville is a ca. 1915 brick Craftsman bungalow that was previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. The property is located across the street from the above referenced airplane bungalow within the same small residential enclave. The house features a cross-gabled roof of composition shingles, brick cladding, brick porch supports, and apparent replacement windows. A rear gabled addition may be of historic age, and the rear carport, although not historic, has been well integrated into the overall design of the house. The rear addition includes the same brick cladding as the house, and the non-historic carport features battered Craftsman-style supports. The addition at the rear of the house does not detract from the original cross-gabled design of the bungalow, and despite replacement windows, and the house retains good integrity. It is the only brick bungalow observed within the survey area. The property was determined NRHP eligible under Criterion C in the area of architecture as an intact example of an early twentieth-century Craftsman bungalow.

112 W. Pecan Street – Queen Anne House (Parcel 276171)

Image 4. Queen Anne house at 112 W. Pecan Street, Pflugerville

The property at 112 W. Pecan Street, at the northeast corner of W. Pecan and N. 2nd Street in Pflugerville is a ca. 1880s Queen Anne-style residence that was previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. The house features a steeply-pitched hipped roof of composition shingles with two dormers. A front-gabled ell on the façade includes a bay window and decorative shingles in the gable end. The half-hipped front porch has simple Doric columns. The house is clad in wood siding and has original two-over-two-light wood sash windows. The property is located along W. Pecan Street, the major commercial corridor through historic Pflugerville, and it is currently used as a commercial realty business. The property was determined NRHP eligible under Criterion C as an intact example of a late nineteenth-century Queen Anne-style residence.

100 S. 2nd Street – House (Parcel 276185)

Image 5. Vernacular residence at 100 S. 2nd Street, Pflugerville

The property at 100 S. 2nd Street in Pflugerville is a ca. 1870 residence and one of the oldest houses within the vicinity. The house appears to have been constructed as a duplex or "twin" house with a symmetrical façade that originally included a "mirror image" door and window configuration on each half of the front elevation. The house includes two original front entrances flanked by a window on either side. One of the central windows has been converted into a third entrance. The side gabled-roof has a high ridge with a single interior brick chimney. An additional half-story is located within the attic. Other features of the house include a half hipped front porch with simple wood posts, wood clapboard siding, and original, narrow four-over-four-light wood sash windows. Although located at the edge of the historic residential neighborhood, the house appears to be used for commercial purposes. The house was determined NRHP eligible under Criterion C in the area of architecture as an intact and early example of a nineteenth-century vernacular residence.

401 W. Pecan Street – Bungalow (Parcel 275978)

Image 6. Bungalow at 401 W. Pecan Street, Pflugerville

The residence at 401 W. Pecan Street is a ca. 1915 Craftsman bungalow that was previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. The hipped roof is covered in standing-seam metal with exposed rafter tails and an interior brick chimney. The house is clad with wood siding and features a wrap-around porch with wooden posts and railings and original two-over-two-light wood sash windows. The bungalow is located along W. Pecan Street, the major commercial corridor through historic Pflugerville, and it is currently used as a commercial business. The property was determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT under Criterion C in the area of architecture as an intact example of an early twentieth-century Craftsman bungalow.

700 W. Pecan Street – Pflugerville Gym (Parcel 827536)

Image 7. Pflugerville Gym

The property at 700 W. Pecan Street in Pflugerville is the former Pflugerville Gym, now located on the campus of Timmerman Elementary School. The rock building was constructed by a Works Progress Administration (WPA) camp in Pflugerville in 1934. It was home to the Pflugerville Panthers football team for many years until a new high school was constructed in 1973.[21] An OTHM for Pflugerville Schools is located in front of the gym and commemorates the history of education in the community. According to the OTHM, the first one-room school house was established in 1872, and a two-story brick school building was constructed in 1907. The Pflugerville Independent School District was created in 1919, and a two-story brick school building was constructed on the site of the current gym in 1921. The Pflugerville Gym was previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT under Criterion C as a significant example of a WPA-era educational facility. It is also recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion A for its role in education in the Pflugerville community.

Metal Truss Bridge – Old Manor Road over Walnut Creek

Image 8. Metal truss bridge – Old Manor Road over Walnut Creek

The metal truss bridge on Old Manor Road over Walnut Creek was previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. It was constructed ca. 1925 and is a steel, thru-truss bridge, providing one-way traffic over Walnut Creek. A concrete railing is located on either side of the steel truss that is of historic age. The bridge is located within a rural area immediately south of US Highway 290 between Ferguson Cutoff Road and Daffan Lane. The bridge serves as the eastbound lane for traffic crossing Walnut Creek on Old Manor Road. A modern replacement road bridge for the westbound lane is located adjacent to the historic bridge. The bridge was determined NRHP eligible under Criterion C, Engineering, as an extant early twentieth-century truss bridge that remains in vehicular operation.

Rock Quarry Missionary Baptist Church (Parcel 190378)

Image 9. Rock Quarry Missionary Baptist Church

Rock Quarry Missionary Baptist Church, at 10411 FM 969, serves an African-American congregation with a long-standing history in Travis County. The church was established in 1881 through the St. John Regular Missionary Baptist Association, an African-American organization dedicated to the creation of Baptist churches in Texas since 1867. The property was determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT under Criterion A. The data provided by TxDOT in their GIS mapping of Historic Districts and Properties noted that the building was constructed in 1940. According to the cornerstone, the current church building was constructed in 1996. The existing building is not of historic age, but a review of historic aerials from 1964, 1966, 1967, 1973, and 1995 identified what appears to have been an earlier church building on the site. It is presumed, therefore, that the TxDOT eligibility determination was for the earlier church building prior to 1996 when it was replaced with the existing structure. The Rock Quarry Missionary Baptist Church congregation has played an important role in the African-American community of Travis County for over 130 years, but the church building itself is not of historic-age. Due to the loss of the former ca. 1940 church building, the property is no longer recommended NRHP eligible. However, it is suggested that the history and significance of the Rock Quarry Missionary Baptist Church be commemorated with an OTHM.

Thunderbird Farm (Parcel 201594 and 201590)

Image 10. Thunderbird Farm ca. 1945 house and ca. 1940 barn

Thunderbird Farm is a multiple-resource agricultural complex located at 9500 FM 969 between Bantom Woods Bend and Imperial Drive. The property consists of two large parcels with at least two residences and multiple outbuildings, many of which have been determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT under Criterion A. The resources previously determined NRHP eligible include the stone posts at the main entrance gate, a ca. 1940 culvert and low water crossing on the entry drive, a ca. 1945 residence, a ca. 1940 water trough and barn, a ca. 1960 "commissary," a ca. 1960 swimming pool, and an additional ca. 1940 low water crossing near the easternmost property entrance.

Image 11. Thunderbird Farm large barn (commissary)

During the field survey for the current project, only part of the property was accessible. All of the resources noted above, with the exception of the water trough and swimming pool, were visible and recorded during the current field survey. The ca. 1940 culvert and water crossing on the main entry drive featured a concrete deck and low concrete railing. Located near the culvert was the ca. 1945 residence with a side-gabled roof, vertical wood siding, and aluminum and vinyl windows. The adjacent ca. 1940 barn featured a gabled metal roof and stone walls.

Image 12. Thunderbird Farm culvert and low water crossing

Additional outbuildings with metal roofs are located behind the barn and visible on Google maps. Wooden fencing enclosed much of the property as pastures or corrals. The water trough identified by TxDOT in the vicinity was not visible. Although not noted by TxDOT, a large ca. 1960 ranch house is located on the property and remains in residential use. The house has a low-pitched side-gabled roof with a projecting gable at the front entry and is clad with stone and vertical wood siding. Beyond the house on the east side of the property are two large barns of wood frame construction with metal roofs. One of the barns is presumed to be the "commissary" noted by TxDOT. The swimming pool, as identified on Google maps, appears to be associated with the ranch house but was not visible during the field survey. A second set of stone pillars and low rock walls marks the second entry at the east end of the property.

The property remains in residential and agricultural use with active fields north of the resources. It continues to convey its significance as an intact agricultural complex with resources dating to the mid-twentieth century (ca. 1940 to ca. 1965).

Old Austin to San Antonio Post Road

Image 13. Segment of the Old Austin to San Antonio Post Road route (Old San Antonio Road) in southern Travis County

A segment of the Old Austin to San Antonio Post Road, located in southern Travis County, was determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. The segment, today identified as Old San Antonio Road, extends south from its intersection with the west side of I-35 in Travis County to Main Street in Buda in Hays County. This portion of Travis County was covered in the Southwest Survey Report for the TCHC, but this resource was omitted. The road served as an early paved automobile route between San Antonio and Austin, linking the communities of New Braunfels, San Marcos, and others in the early decades of the twentieth century. Federal funds to construct post roads were incorporated into the 1912 Post Office Department Appropriations Act, and in Texas, this funding went into the creation of the post road between San Antonio and Austin. It was originally constructed as a 16-foot wide macadam road. The 1912 Act became law in 1916 and led to the development of a state department of transportation for each state receiving federal funding for roads. In Texas, this department was established in 1917. [22]

Today, the corridor along the Travis County segment of the Old Austin to San Antonio Post Road remains largely undeveloped despite its proximity to I-35. One housing development backs up to a westside stretch of the road between Twin Creeks Road and Onion Creek Drive, and future residential development is soon to occur on the east side of the road within the same general area. The road corridor was determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT under Criterion A for its association with early transportation routes between Austin and San Antonio, and it is significant as an early recipient of federal transportation funding.

VIII.B. Previously Identified or Determined NRHP Eligible – THC Atlas

Bohls House (Parcel 481344)

Image 14. Bohls House, Heritage Park in Pflugerville

The Bohls House was constructed for Gottlieb William Bohls (1878-1961) and his wife Bertha Timmerman in 1913. The home was built at its current location on their 95-acre farm located on the Austin-Hutto Road north of Pflugerville. The house replaced an earlier home on their property. In 1925, Gottlieb sold the house to his brother, Otto Walter Bohls Sr., and his wife Laura Fuchs. Otto served as chair of the Travis County Agricultural Adjustment Administration for 13 years and was renowned for his soil conservation practices such as crop rotation, contour farming, building stock tanks, and planting cover crops. The property was deeded to the City of Pflugerville by members of the Bohls family in 1993 to promote the history and heritage of the community. [23]

Image 15. Bohls House, Heritage Park in Pflugerville

The early twentieth-century, one-and-a-half-story Queen Anne-style house has a hipped roof of composition shingles with cross gables and multiple dormers. It is clad with original wood siding. The home features a wrap-around porch with simple Doric columns and turned spindles in the balustrade; decorative shingles in the gable end; and original entrance doors with an oval window and sidelights at the main front entrance. The house remains in its original location that is now within Heritage Park where it serves as the Heritage House Museum. The museum contains artifacts representing rural farm life in the early and mid-twentieth century. The Bohls House is an RTHL and commemorated with an OTHM. It is recommended NRHP eligible under Criteria B and C. Under Criterion B, the house has been associated with members of the Bohls family, one of the leading early families of Pflugerville, from its construction in 1913 through 1993. Under Criterion C, although its setting has been altered, the house remains an intact and significant example of an early twentieth-century Queen Anne-style residence and continues to convey its significance as an interpretive house museum.

Image 16. Craftsman bungalow next to Bohls House in Heritage Park

A second house, a ca. 1915 Craftsman bungalow, is located beside the Bohls House and was relocated to the site sometime after 2012. It appears to have originally been located further north on FM 685 near the present day intersection of SH 130. The bungalow also appears to be NRHP eligible under Criterion C and may have significant historical associations. Further research is merited.

Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church (Parcel 272879)

Image 17. Immanuel Lutheran Church, Pflugerville

Immanuel (Evangelical) Lutheran Church is located at 500 Immanuel Road in Pflugerville and is the third church building erected on the site. The evangelical congregation was established in 1874, and land for a church and cemetery was donated by prominent area land owner William Bohls. At that time, the community of Pflugerville was located close by at the intersection of today's Immanuel and Dessau Roads and Pflugerville East Road (E. Pecan Street). In 1904, the town relocated west to be near the new railroad. In 1875, a frame church building was constructed on the site. A school was established in 1887. William Pfluger donated four additional acres to the church in 1889. A brick church building replaced the frame structure and served the community from 1909 until 1928 when it was destroyed by a fire. The existing church building, with an interior pipe organ, was constructed and dedicated the following year in 1929. Several additional buildings have been added to the property over the mid- to late twentieth century. In 1963, an adjacent parsonage and education building were constructed during a $100,000 building program. A tennis court was installed in 1971, and a brick maintenance building was added in 1976. A multi-purpose building was completed in 1983, and a day-school program was started in 1985. Interior restoration to the sanctuary and basement was completed in 1990, and the pipe organ was restored in 1999. In 2000, a gymnasium and additional classrooms were completed, and the day-school moved into the new facilities. Today the congregation is known as Immanuel Lutheran Church, and the church and adjacent cemetery continue to play an important role in the local community. An OTHM commemorating the church's history was dedicated in 1974.[24]

The church exemplifies the early twentieth-century English Gothic Revival style with a cruciform plan and a square, central front bell tower. The one-and-a-half-story building on a raised basement is clad in brick with concrete or limestone quoins and window surrounds and what appears to be a slate roof. The windows are a variety of stained glass. The central front entrance at the base of the bell tower has an arched double door and Gothic Revival-style door surround. Minor alterations include replacement concrete stairs and railings at the main entrance and the incorporation of a concrete wheelchair ramp on the south side of the sanctuary. The church campus includes several late twentieth-century structures, but most of them are separate outbuildings that are not physically connected to the historic church building. The 1963 parsonage and education building is connected to the church by a small hyphen, but the mid-century structure is set back from the church's façade and is of smaller scale. The church building remains the focal point of the site and continues to serve as a religious facility.

Image 18. Immanuel Lutheran Church and Cemetery, Pflugerville

The Immanuel Lutheran Church is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion A for its association with the early development of the Pflugerville community in the late nineteenth century and as a continuously operating religious institution for over 140 years. It is also recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C in the area of architecture as an intact and significant example of an early twentieth-century English Gothic Revival-style church.

William Pfluger House (Parcel 278005)

The William Pfluger House is located in northern Pflugerville on Pfening Lane and was constructed in 1875 for William Pfluger, one of the early settlers in the town of Pflugerville. The property was home to five generations of Pfluger family members through 1995.[25] Since that time, however, it has remained vacant. The house is a substantial two-story limestone structure with a two-story frame addition that was added to the rear of the house reportedly within a few years of its initial construction.

Image 19. William Pfluger House (rear elevation from Pflugerville Parkway)

The house features a hipped roof of standing seam metal, two exterior brick chimneys, and inset porches on the rear addition on both the first and second floors. The rear addition is sheathed in wood clapboard siding, and windows are original six-over-six-light wood sash. An original transom and sidelights remain intact at the rear entrance on the second floor porch. The photos of the resource taken during the field survey are of the rear elevation with the wood framed addition, but earlier photos from 1947 and a THC survey conducted in 1984 reveal the original limestone construction of the main block of the house. Walls are reportedly 16 inches thick. A wood-framed barn with a corrugated metal roof is located to the west of the house and is in poor condition. A ca. 1940s wood-framed garage is located immediately north of the house. The house is located on a small parcel within a large open tract of land that appears to remain in agricultural use. The surrounding area, however, has been largely built out with modern suburban residential and commercial development.

Image 20. William Pfluger House and barn

William Pfluger (1842–1923) was one of eight sons of German immigrant Henry Pfluger, who arrived in the area in 1849 with his family. Henry Pfluger and his sons were instrumental in the establishment of the town of Pflugerville after the Civil War. In 1871, William Pfluger purchased the property on which he would build his house. In addition to ranching, William Pfluger constructed a cotton gin, the first bank in Pflugerville, and additional commercial buildings.[26]

The William Pfluger House was designated as an RTHL in 1985 and commemorated with an OTHM. The property was identified on Preservation Texas' Most Endangered List in 2012. An organization known as the Pfluger Haus Foundation was established in 2009 and has been working to raise funds to purchase and restore the William Pfluger House for use as a community gathering place. The property is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion B for its association with early community founder William Pfluger and subsequent generations of Pfluger family members through 1995. It is also recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C, in the area of architecture, as an outstanding example of a late nineteenth-century vernacular residence that has been part of the Pflugerville community for over 140 years.

Decker United Methodist Church (Parcel 214222)

The congregation of Decker United Methodist Church was established in 1879 for Swedish immigrants who settled within the area. The first church was constructed at that time, and a public school opened in 1882. The original church was enlarged in 1884 and a parsonage was built. The current church building replaced the earlier church in 1901–1902. A modern wing was added in 1967. The Decker Community Methodist Cemetery is located immediately north of the church.

Image 23. Decker United Methodist Church

The church is a cross-gabled, wood-framed structure with a steeply-pitched shingle roof, wood clapboard siding, and a square corner bell tower and entrance with a shingled steeple. The church exhibits minimal Gothic Revival detailing in its arched stained-glass windows. The large side addition, constructed in 1967, has a side-gabled roof with a lower ridge line than the main structure. The addition appears to be clad in the same wood siding. A rear shed-roof addition has been incorporated behind the side wing. A wooden wheel chair ramp has been added at a side entrance of the church. An OTHM commemorating the church and Decker community is located near the front entrance.

Located slightly behind the church on the same property is a ca. 1880s Queen Anne-style residence, thought to be the 1884 parsonage. The house has a steeply pitched cross-gabled roof of asphalt shingles and is clad in wood siding. It appears to have original one-over-one-light wood windows. Decorative elements include brackets at the bay window, delicate spindlework on the front porch, and decorative shingles in the gable end. The house remains a residence.

Image 24. 1880s Queen Anne-style house behind Decker United Methodist Church (possible parsonage)

Although the church building has been altered somewhat by the side addition, the original block of the church remains intact and is differentiated from the addition by a higher ridge line. The congregation remains active, and the church building continues to be in use. The probable parsonage behind the church also remains in use as a residence. The Decker United Methodist Church is recommended NRHP eligible under Criteria A and C for its association with the early development of the community of Decker and as a largely intact example of a modest Gothic Revival-influenced church building that has served the community for over 100 years.

Jones-Bolm House – Hergotz Lane (Parcel 288525)

Image 25. Jones-Bolm House on Hergotz Lane

The property at 6818 Hergotz Lane includes a two-story limestone residence that reportedly dates to ca. 1846–1852. The land is associated with the early area Van Zandt family and Colonel Thomas H. Jones, who married Maria Louisa Van Zandt. Houston historian Lanny Ottosen, a colleague of TCHC Chair Bob Ward, provided numerous materials from his personal research collection about the house. It was identified by the THC through a neighborhood survey, and the house has been recorded in three architectural studies dated 1969, 1980, and 1988. It is reportedly one of the oldest extant houses in this portion of Travis County. The house is located on a large parcel on Hergotz Lane that abuts the south bank of the Colorado River. Deed research conducted by Mr. Ottosen indicates that the land was originally conveyed by Santiago Del Valle to Michael Menard in 1835 and shortly thereafter to Thomas F. McKinney. In February of 1848, the property was conveyed by McKinney to Thomas H. Jones.[27] Thomas H. Jones (1812-1888) was noted as a farmer and builder/stone cutter, and his contracting services are attributed to the construction of a number of buildings in Austin in the mid-nineteenth century, including the first Travis County Courthouse and the Sampson Henricks Building on Congress Avenue, among others.[28,29]

Image 26. Jones-Bolm House on Hergotz Lane

According to deed research from Mr. Ottosen, Thomas H. Jones conveyed portions of the property to heirs of the late Robert Davis (his brother-in-law) in 1854, retaining a large tract of land for himself. The 1854 deed noted that the property had been conveyed previously by prior owner Thomas F. McKinney to Robert Davis and Isaac Van Zandt as "equal tenants in common" and that Van Zandt had conveyed his interest to Thomas H. Jones (likely through Jones' marriage to Maria Louisa Van Zandt)[30] This is inconsistent with the earlier 1848 deed from McKinney to Jones, but no additional deed transactions have been located to support or refute this. In describing the land, the 1854 deed noted that Thomas H. Jones had made "valuable improvements thereon" and specifically mentioned "a present dwelling house of said Thomas H. Jones" on the property.[31] Apparently, a dispute ensued over division of the property, and commissioners were nominated by the court to review and partition the land. The surveyor commissioned for the task,

Robert Cruezbaur, prepared a map of the land and clearly noted a structure in the location of the existing house.

In an 1852 Galveston newspaper article, author H.H. Smith vividly described his impressions of travel from Lockhart to Austin and observed that "within three or four miles of Austin, Mr. Thomas H. Jones, a wealthy planter and one of the contractors for the stone of the Capitol, is erecting a stately Mansion…"[32] Smith attributed the construction to one of Jones' slaves, who he noted was a master builder that had learned the stone building trade in Nashville, Tennessee. Smith further described the material as a "soft limestone…taken from a quarry some four miles distant…"[33] Based on this account, it appears that the house was under construction in 1852.

Image 27. Jones-Bolm House in 1936. Identified as "Jones-Cardwell Plantation." Austin. Fannie Ratchford 1970_101_0060. Texas State Archives.

Thomas H. Jones is identified in the 1860 Travis County Census as a 48-year-old farmer from South Carolina. Living with him in 1860 was his wife M. L. Jones and nine children ranging in age from 21 years to 3 years.[34] Jones was identified in the 1860 Slave Schedule as owning 31 slaves and 8 slave houses.[35] In 1880, a map of the area clearly shows a structure in the location of the existing house that is noted as "Jones."[36]

The extant two-story house is of limestone block construction. The side-gabled roof has a very low slope and a dentiled cornice. The profile is narrow and one room deep with a central hall plan. The façade is symmetrical with a central door and multi-light transom flanked by two windows on either side. The second-floor façade is the same with a single window over the entrance. A flat-roofed entrance portico is located at the front door and supported by square corner columns. The windows have been replaced with non-historic one-over-one-light sash windows with tinted glass, and the double front door is a modern replacement. A small, one-story, shed-roof addition has been added on the rear elevation. A basement is accessed by an opening on the eastside exterior elevation.

According to the research and architectural drawings of the home completed in 1980 by J.S. Rabun and D.A. Perez, the property was purchased in 1926 by Mr. A.D. Bolm. The daughter of Mr. Bolm, Mrs. Curtis Fitzpatrick, provided information about the property during the 1980 study. She stated that the home was merely a stone shell when it was purchased by her father in the 1920s and that he undertook an extensive remodeling, using salvaged building materials from other historic-age houses. Reportedly, a former two-story rear veranda was not replaced, and two second floor doors originally opening onto the veranda were converted to windows. The rear shed-roof addition, visible today, was added at that time and included a bathroom and storage area. The exiting concrete front porch with square columns was also added during the 1920s remodel. Windows were replaced with wood sashes that fit within the original window openings. The interior configuration was also changed at that time, with the staircase relocated at the rear of the central hall. The 1980 report indicated that the windows were one-over-one-light, but this appears to have only been on the first floor.[37] In 1996, the home was featured on a Heritage Society of Austin Heritage Homes Tour, and photographs indicated that the upper floor windows were nine-over-one-light sashes.[38]

Image 28. Jones-Bolm House in 1936. Identified as "Jones-Cardwell Plantation." Austin. Fannie Ratchford 1970_101_0062. Texas State Archives.

The house is located on a large parcel that spans both sides of Hergotz Lane. Additional structures on the parcel include a small, side-gabled residence that appears to date to the early to mid-twentieth century, as well as a large non-historic-age, metal-framed shed. J.F. Bernhagen, Lee Cox, and Eugene R. Foster, in their 1988 architectural drawings of the house, indicated the presence of a cistern on the east side of the home, but it was not visible during the field survey for the current project.[39] Additional structures are located behind the main house but were also not visible during the field survey. Google maps indicate that they may include additional houses or outbuildings.

The main house is recommended NRHP eligible under Criteria A and C. Under Criterion A, it is significant as one of the earliest remaining houses in this part of Travis County and is associated with mid-nineteenth-century rural development along the Colorado River. Under Criterion C, despite the replacement windows and front doors, the house remains a largely intact and significant example of a ca. 1850 vernacular limestone residence constructed by one of the area's early settlers with indigenous stone from a local quarry site. The renovations that were undertaken by the Bolm family ca. 1926 are of historic age, were in keeping with the original design of the house, and convey the evolution of the home from mid-nineteenth- to early twentieth-century residence. Despite the more recent replacement windows and front door, the house retains integrity of its overall design, workmanship, feeling, and association, and remains within a largely rural setting along the Colorado River. The property appears to remain under the ownership of Bolm (Fitzpatrick) descendents as the Fitzpatrick Bar X Ranch.

Albert Pfluger House, Banner House, and H.H. Pfluger House – Pflugerville

The three resources in Pflugerville that were identified in the THC Atlas and were recorded as part of previous neighborhood surveys were evaluated during fieldwork for the current project as part of the proposed Pflugerville Historic District. The three properties were assigned a high preservation priority rating and are considered contributing resources to the potential historic district (see Section VIII.C. and Table 6).

VIII.C. Reconnaissance Survey Area – High Priority – Properties Recommended NRHP Eligible

A total of 11 individual resources and one potential historic district were identified during the reconnaissance survey for the current project and are recommended as high priority for preservation and NRHP eligible for their historic significance and/or architectural integrity. These resources are listed in Table 5 and are addressed individually in the text below. THC survey forms were completed for each individual property (see Appendix B). Refer to Maps 1–42 in Appendix D.

Queen Anne House (Parcel 281589)

The property at 19347 Wilke Lane, along the frontage road of SH 45, is a ca. 1910 Queen Anne style-house. The steeply-pitched hipped roof is covered in asphalt shingles, and the house is clad with wood siding. A wrap-around porch with simple Doric columns is located along the façade. Windows appear to be original one-over-one-light wood sashes. A wood-framed garage is located next to the house, and a corrugated metal outbuilding of historic age is behind the garage. The house is sited on a large open parcel with large trees surrounding the home. The adjacent area has largely been built out with modern residential and commercial development. The house remains in residential use.

Image 29. Queen Anne house at 19347 Wilke Lane

Although the setting has largely been altered by recent development, the house is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C as an intact example of a ca. 1910 Queen Anne-style residence that remains within an area that has been largely altered by recent highway construction and suburban growth.

Wuthrich Farms - House and Barn (Parcel 716088)

The property at the end of Willow Street adjacent to Dessau Road in Pflugerville consists of a large agricultural parcel with multiple structures. The structures were mostly not visible due to a large setback, but a house was partially visible from the entrance gate, and a large barn was partially visible from the road.

Image 30. Wuthrich Farms main house from entrance gate

According to CAD data, both the house and barn were constructed in 1912. The property is listed today as Wuthrich Farms, Ltd. A review of Google maps revealed several structures including at least one house, several barns and outbuildings, and a smaller structure that may be a second residence. Based on historic aerials, the main house, large barn located northeast of the house, and several small outbuildings behind the house (that are still standing) were visible as early as 1954. The house appears to have originally been an L-shaped Folk Victorian with a wrap-around front porch and dormer windows. The large barn visible from the road has a metal roof. Further access is needed to definitively assess the resources for integrity and eligibility under Criterion C, but it is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion A as an intact early twentieth-century farmstead that has played a role in the agricultural development of the Pflugerville community.

Bungalow (Parcel 274664)

The property at 605 Paul Street in Pflugerville is a ca. 1915 Craftsman bungalow. The one-and-a-half-story house features a high-pitched front-gabled roof of standing-seam metal, an exterior brick chimney, a gabled inset front porch with square wooden supports, and original wood siding. Craftsman features include eave brackets and original multi-light-over-one-light wood sash windows. The property is located within the small four-block residential area off of E. Pecan Street that is separated from downtown and the main historic residential area of Pflugerville by the former rail road line that is now part of a walking trail. It is across the street from the previously referenced airplane bungalow that was determined eligible by TxDOT. The property is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C in the area of architecture and an intact and significant example of ca. 1915 Craftsman bungalow.

Truss Bridge – Immanuel Road over Gilleland Creek (Parcel 274729)

Image 32. Truss bridge at Immanuel Road over Gilleland Creek

The structure at the intersection of Immanuel Road and E. Pecan Street in Pflugerville is a ca. 1935 polygonal Warren Pony truss bridge over Gilleland Creek. The structure originally served as a vehicular bridge for Immanuel Road but was converted to pedestrian use when a new road bridge was constructed in the early 2000s.[40] As a pedestrian bridge, it now serves as part of the Heritage Trails and Bohls Loop walking trails systems in Pflugerville. The bridge is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C in the area of engineering as an intact example of a 1935 truss bridge that has been converted from vehicular to pedestrian use.

Queen Anne House (Parcel 806319)

Image 33. Queen Anne house at 15000 Cameron Road

The Queen Anne-style house at 15000 Cameron Road in Pflugerville has a CAD-listed date of 1900. The house is located on a large agricultural parcel at the intersection of Cameron Road and SH 130. Although somewhat difficult to see due to a large setback and trees surrounding the house, it appears to be an intact ca. 1900 Queen Anne-style residence. The cross-gabled roof is of standing seam metal with an interior brick chimney and decorative shingles at the gable end. The house is clad with board and batten siding and appears to have retained the original one-over-one-light wood sash windows. The house is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C as an intact example of a turn-of-the-century Queen Anne-style home and one of the few resources of this age remaining within an area that has been altered by the construction of SH 130.

Queen Anne House (Parcel 236575)

Image 34. Queen Anne house at 9608 Sprinkle Road

According to CAD, the one-and-a-half-story Queen Anne-style house at 9608 Sprinkle Road was constructed in 1870. The house is currently vacant and largely obscured from view by vegetation and a large setback. Visible features included a cross-gabled roof clad with red composition shingles, an interior brick chimney, dormer windows, metal awnings over some of the upper-level windows, and wood clapboard siding. It appears that a porch along the south elevation may have been enclosed sometime in the early twentieth century. A rear addition of historic age is also visible.

Little historical information was uncovered about the house during the background research effort. Deed records indicate that the property was formerly under the Harold and Margaret Draper Living Trust. The house is located within the former community of Sprinkle that was established in the 1870s by Erasmus Frederick Sprinkle. A review of the Travis County Clerk Records: Road Books Precinct 1 indicated that the property may have been owned by a T.O. (Thomas Owen) Maxwell between 1898 and 1902.[41] Due to the age and architectural significance of the house, it is possible that the house was originally the home of community founder Erasmus Sprinkle. Further research is needed to determine significant historic associations. Based on the field survey, the property is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C, Architecture, as an intact example of a late nineteenth-century Queen Anne-style house and as one of the few remaining homes of this age and architectural significance within the area.

Queen Anne House and Barn (Parcel 841408)

Image 35. Queen Anne house at 1604 Nightview Drive

The ca. 1900 Queen Anne-style house at 1604 Nightview Drive in Pflugerville is located within a ca. 1970s residential subdivision of largely manufactured homes. The house features a steeply-pitched hipped roof with a projecting front and rear gable. The roof is covered with composition shingles, and there is one interior brick chimney and gabled front and rear dormers. The house is clad with wood siding and includes a half-hipped front porch with turned wooden posts and decorative brackets. Windows appear to be original two-over-two-light wood sash, and the front door appears to be original with an oval window. A back porch includes the same turned wood supports and decorative brackets. A large wood-framed barn is located on the lot next to the house. It is a two-story structure of board and batten siding with a corrugated-metal hipped roof. There are multiple bays on the barn, and it appears to be used for vehicle storage.

The house and barn are significant as early remaining resources in an area otherwise altered by late twentieth century and more recent residential development. The property was undoubtedly a former farmstead prior to the subdivision of the surrounding area. The property is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C, Architecture, as an intact and significant example of a turn-of-the-century Queen Anne-style residence and a large barn.

Image 36. Large barn adjacent to the house at 1604 Nightview Drive

McArthur-Sneed-Simnacher House and Cemetery (Parcel 855742)

The McArthur-Sneed-Simnacher House is a mid-nineteenth-century rural residence and agricultural complex located at 9501 Sherman Lane near Del Valle. The property consists of a large parcel still in agricultural use that abuts the west bank of the Colorado River. Based on research provided by historian Lanny Ottosen and information available through Ancestry.com, the home is believed to have been constructed ca. 1850 for Nicholas McArthur (1812-1851) and his wife Lodoiska Doyle (1823-1853) on 1,200 acres that they purchased. Lodoiska was the only child of early area settlers James and Mary Doyle, who also had extensive landholdings in the area. Nicholas McArthur donated a nearby parcel of land and a log cabin to the community for a school, later known as the Colorado School. His home was constructed between the school and the Colorado River.[42] McArthur was noted as a contractor and carpenter who, along with his father-in-law James Doyle, helped to construct the first Land Office Building in Austin in 1851.[43] McArthur died that year, but the building was completed by his father-in-law in 1852. McArthur's wife passed away the following year in 1853, leaving several young children in the care of their grandparents James and Mary Doyle.[44] In 1865, their daughter, Mary Elizabeth McArthur (1848-1902) married William Jasper Sneed, son of Judge Sebron G. Sneed of Austin.[45]

Image 37. McArthur-Sneed-Simnacher House

Deed research conducted by Mr. Ottosen indicates that a lawsuit was filed in 1866 against the Nicholas McArthur estate. William Jasper Sneed and wife Mary Elizabeth McArthur remained on the property and occupied the house, while portions of the property were divided among family members.[46]

Image 38. McArthur-Sneed-Simnacher House

The property was further divided among the Sneed children in a 1910 lawsuit.[47] Their son William Graham Sneed (1869–1951) acquired the property with his wife Emma Hergotz (1879–1978), who was the daughter of neighboring landowner Albert Hergotz. They in turn left the property to their daughter Frances "Fannie" Sneed Simnacher (1913–2016), great-granddaughter of Nicholas McArthur.[48] She retained ownership until her recent death at the age of 104. The property remains under the Frances Simnacher Trust, and according to Travis County Historical Commissioner and family friend Joe (Bobby) Cervantes, Fannie's granddaughter is in the process of restoring the house.

The current property includes the original ca. 1850 house, a metal-clad barn, at least three additional small outbuildings visible on aerial images, and a second house at the northern edge of the property with a CAD year-built date of 1936 that was only visible on aerial images. The Sneed-McArthur Cemetery, as identified by the THC, is also located on the property but was not visible during the field survey. The cemetery contains the graves of William Jasper Sneed and his wife Mary Elizabeth McArthur, son William Graham Sneed, and daughter-in-law Emma Hergotz, as well as three McArthur family members.[49] Reportedly, Fannie Sneed Simnacher also noted the possibility of an unidentified slave cemetery somewhere on the parcel.

Image 39. McArthur-Sneed-Simnacher House

The property was a Texas Department of Agriculture's Family Land Heritage Program honoree in 1988. This honorary designation recognizes agricultural properties that have remained family-owned and in continuous agricultural operation for 100 years or more. As of 1988, the family retained 57.25 acres of the original 1,200-acre Nicholas McArthur property and continued to raise cattle and hay.[50]

The house is of an unusual triple-pen design with a central block flanked by a side-gabled section on either side. The central section has a higher roof line and a large stone chimney at one end and appears to have been constructed first, with the two side-gabled sections added slightly later. Based on a 1936 photograph, the central block originally reflected Greek Revival-style influences in its symmetry, unadorned frieze band, and vertical wood members resembling pilasters with chamfered corner posts. The house has a corrugated metal roof, wood clapboard siding, and original multi-light wood sash windows. The central section is symmetrical with a central double-door, multi-light transom, and a window on either side. Both side-gabled sections include single windows and doors with transoms below inset front porches. One original door and screened-door remain, while one door has been boarded over. The exterior of the house has experienced few changes over the last 80 years. TCHC Commissioner Joe Cervantes noted that a back porch was added to the house ca. 1910 and that an interior renovation of the kitchen occurred in the 1980s. The metal-clad barn near the house that was visible during the field survey is not of historic age and is not visible on historic aerial photographs until after 1973. The other structures and cemetery on the property were not visible during the field survey.

The McArthur-Sneed-Simnacher house is recommended NRHP eligible under Criteria A, B, and C. Under Criterion A, it is one of the few extant resources from the mid-nineteenth century within the area and is significant for its association with the early agricultural development of southern Travis County. Under Criterion B, the property is significant for its association with a number of early founding families including James and Mary Doyle, Nicholas McArthur, and William Jasper and William Graham Sneed. The property remains in agricultural use and has been within descendents of the same family since the mid-nineteenth century. In the area of architecture, the property is significant under Criterion C as a highly intact example of a ca. 1850s vernacular rural residence with Greek Revival-style influences. It has retained integrity of design, materials, workmanship, feeling, location, setting, and association as a continuously-occupied home for over 165 years.

Albert Hergotz House and Farmstead (Parcel 288561)

The property at 9521 Hergotz Lane is a large, fifty-seven-acre parcel located immediately north of the above referenced McArthur-Sneed-Simnacher property. The property is associated with early area settler Albert Hergotz (1847–1941) who reportedly immigrated to the United States from Germany in 1870.[51] In the 1900 census, Albert Hergotz was identified as a farmer living with his wife Maud S. (Maud Sophia Dubie) and ten children, including seven daughters and three sons ranging from 24 to three years of age.[52]

Image 41. Albert Hergotz House, "the old home place" on Hergotz Lane. Available from "Find a Grave" website "Albert Hergotz." Added by hubach88.

Historian Lanny Ottosen provided information about the history of the Hergotz family. A family member told Mr. Ottosen that in addition to farming, Albert Hergotz ran a small dry goods store, operated a ferry on the Colorado River below his house, and ran a still during prohibition.[53] Albert's oldest daughter, Emma Hergotz (1879–1978), married William Graham Sneed, who was noted in the preceding section as the son of William Jasper and Mary Elizabeth Sneed and inherited the McArthur-Sneed-Simnacher property. Fannie Sneed Simnacher was their only child. Although not officially confirmed through deed research, Mr. Ottosen believes that a portion of the Hergotz property was originally part of the Nicholas McArthur estate (the grandfather of William Graham Sneed) that was divided in 1852 after his death. Additional tracts were acquired over time through purchases from McArthur and Sneed heirs.[54] Albert Hergotz died in 1941 at the age of 94. His obituary stated that he had been a resident of Travis County for 80 years.[55]

The former Hergotz property is a long parcel spanning the western bank of the Colorado River at the end of Hergotz Lane. The property contains a collection of structures that were not accessible during the field survey but are visible on Google images. The resources include the ca. 1880 Albert Hergotz house, a smaller house, a number of barns, and an outhouse. The structures are all currently vacant and in a state of disrepair, but a historic photograph on the Albert Hergotz page on the "Find a Grave" website identifies the existing house as the "old home place on Hergotz Lane."[56] The photo shows the apparent rear elevation of a one-and-a-half-story side-gabled house with a shed-roof front porch and a full-length shed-roof rear porch that was partially enclosed. The house featured a shingle roof with an interior brick chimney, wood clapboard siding, and multi-light wood sash windows. A wooden picket fence enclosed the front and side yards immediately around the house, and a wood rail fence was located at the rear of the house.

Although most of the resources were not visible or accessible during the field survey, Mr. Ottosen provided photos from a site visit he conducted in May 2017. He was able to access and photo-document the structures, although visibility was limited due to heavy foliage and overgrowth. The former Hergotz house remained standing, although in poor condition, and its original shingle roof and wood siding were still visible. A second, small, one-room house was also photographed by Mr. Ottosen and appears to be a wood-framed structure with a shingle roof, exterior brick chimney, and the remains of its original board and batten siding. Heavy timber floor members with visible hand saw markings were visible. A number of small, wood and metal-clad outbuildings and barns are located on the property in various states of disrepair. A wood-framed double-seat outhouse is also on the property.

Based on Google image aerial imagery, there are at least eight structures located within close proximity to one another on the northern half of the property. A ninth resource, a former house, is located away from the other structures at the far northern corner of the property where Hergotz Lane dead ends. The house was visible during the field survey, although partially obscured by foliage. The structure is a small, side-gabled house, with a metal roof, board and batten siding, an inset front porch, and multi-light wood sash windows. It appears to date to the early twentieth century and is presumed to be associated with the Hergotz family and property. It is currently vacant.

The Hergotz House and former farmstead are recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion A as a fairly intact example of a late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century farmstead. Although the individual structures have suffered neglect and are empty, the resources remain standing with most of their original materials intact. The property as a whole continues to convey significance as a former agricultural property that once characterized this part of Travis County.

Henry-Bolm Farmstead / Bailey Ranch and Cemetery (Parcel 288435)

Image 45. Main house on Henry-Bolm Farmstead / Bailey Ranch.

The property at 8300 Hergotz Lane is now known as the Bailey Ranch and is historically associated with A.D. Bolm, noted previously for his 1926 purchase of large land holdings and the former Thomas H. Jones house on Hergotz Lane. Today the property consists of a large parcel of almost 700 acres abutting the eastern bank of the Colorado River near US Hwy 183. It is located at the bend in Hergotz Lane, which was at one time reportedly also known as Bolm Road for area land owner A.D. Bolm. To avoid confusion, a group of citizens petitioned the City of Austin, and the name was officially changed to Hergotz Lane in 1957.[57] Deed records indicate that the property was owned by Bolm family descendents until at least 2005 when it was conveyed to the Bailey Management Trust and Bailey Ranch Holdings, LP.

Multiple structures are located on the property, including three residences, several barns, and additional outbuildings. The main house, barns, and outbuildings all appear to date to the early twentieth century and are visible on a 1937 Tobin aerial photograph.[58] The house appears to have been altered sometime after 1973 with a large side addition. Two additional small houses and a garage are visible on historic aerials by 1964 and remain standing. One of the houses has been altered with a front addition or the possible inclusion of a manufactured home along the façade. All of the structures are located at the end of a long drive and were not entirely visible from the right of way.

Historian Lanny Ottosen identified the presence of an undocumented cemetery on the Hergotz Lane property located behind the structures. Information provided by Mr. Ottosen included an 1878 deed that noted the presence of the cemetery.[59] It reportedly contains the burials of early area settlers Elizabeth Bailey Walton Henry (1810–1880) and John David Henry (1805-1853), as well as members of the Shaw family.[60, 61] A lawsuit regarding the one-and-a-half-acre cemetery was filed in 1943 by relatives of the Henry and Shaw families.[62] In 1944, the cemetery was fenced and gated, and the heirs and the public were provided access to the cemetery. Today, the cemetery land is totally overgrown, and there are no known grave markers.

In relation to the cemetery, Mr. Ottosen noted that in the nineteenth century the surrounding area within the bend in the Colorado River was referred to as Mitchell's Bend for early land owner Robert Mitchell who acquired property nearby in 1843.[63] Reportedly, in 1853, a 640-acre tract was purchased from Robert Mitchell by family members John D. Henry, Meredith Walton, and James Benson and soon divided into thirds upon the death of John D. Henry later that year. His widow, Elizabeth Henry, continued to live on her portion of the property.[64] John and Elizabeth Henry are among the burials in the undocumented cemetery, which would have been located on land belonging to Thomas H. Jones at that time in the nineteenth century.

The former cemetery was not visible from the right of way, but several of the existing structures on the property were partially documented. The first is a ca. 1945 ranch style house with a hipped roof, stucco siding, and a number of non-historic replacement windows. The second structure is a small, side-gabled house with board and batten siding and multi-light windows. It appears that a side addition with vinyl or asbestos siding was added in the 1940s. A third small house is located adjacent to the first two and appears to date to the 1940s or early 1950s. A detached, two-car garage is located beside the house. Further back is a large barn and silo. A number of other apparent agricultural outbuildings were not visible from the right of way.

Further research and access is merited to fully evaluate the property for significant historical associations and integrity. The property has been associated with the Bolm family since the initial purchase of a large tract by A.D. Bolm in 1926 and appears to remain an intact and significant example of an early twentieth-century farmstead. The property is recommended eligible under Criteria A and D for its association with early agricultural development of the area and for the reported presence of a cemetery containing burials of early community residents.

Queen Anne House and Farmstead (Parcels 201586 and 476537)

Image 48. Queen Anne house and farmstead from Hog Eye Road

The property on Decker Lake Road between Imperial Drive and Decker Lane was photo-documented from Hog Eye Road at the rear of the parcel during the field survey. The property includes a ca. 1890 Queen Anne-style house, a possible second residence of historic age, and at least three historic-age agricultural outbuildings or barns. The structures are located within a fenced parcel on a large tract of undeveloped land with cultivated fields at the rear of the tract. The house and buildings have a large setback, and only the main house was visible from the right of way. The Queen Anne-style house features a steeply-pitched hipped roof with front and rear projecting gables and one interior brick chimney. The house is clad in wood siding with decorative shingles and vergeboard at the gable end. The half-hipped front porch has turned wooden posts and decorative spindlework. A rear gabled addition of historic age is clad with a combination of wood clapboard and board and batten siding. At least a few of the windows are non-historic replacements. A side-gabled structure located next to the main house appears to be a second residence but was not entirely visible from the right of way. The metal-roofed agricultural buildings behind the house were not visible during the field survey.

The property is recommended NRHP eligible under Criterion C in the area of architecture as an intact example of a late nineteenth-century Queen Anne-style house and former farmstead. Despite some replacement windows, the house retains overall integrity of design, materials, workmanship, and feeling.

Pflugerville Residential Historic District (Proposed)

Image 49. Albert Pfluger House at 300 N. 5th Street, proposed Pflugerville Residential Historic District

The town of Pflugerville was within the survey area of the current project and had not been previously evaluated in a TCHC survey. The highest concentration of historic-age resources identified by CAD year-built data was located on both sides of W. Pecan Street in downtown Pflugerville primarily between W. Wilbarger Street (north), Noton Street (south), 5th Street (west), and Railroad and Wren Avenues (east). The resources consisted primarily of late-nineteenth and early twentieth-century houses in a residential neighborhood setting, with the exception of some commercial structures along W. Pecan Street and E. Main Street. The NRHP-listed East Main Street Historic District is located within this area one block north of W. Pecan Street. The district includes a partial city block of four early twentieth-century commercial buildings at 111, 113, 115, and 117 E. Main Street. Additional commercial resources are also located along E. Main Street but are not architecturally significant or not of historic age (see Figure 6 in Appendix C).

The residential areas were initially evaluated at a windshield level to determine significant resources, assess for integrity, and to determine a potential district boundary. The houses reflect a number of late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century styles including Folk Victorian, Queen Anne, and Craftsman bungalows, with small numbers of mid-twentieth-century Minimal Traditional and Ranch style homes on some of the outlying streets. Only a small number of non-historic infill residences were observed. Overall, the majority of houses retain medium to high integrity of design, materials, workmanship, and feeling.

Image 50. Contributing resource at 104 W. Pfluger Street, proposed Pflugerville Residential Historic District

Based on the initial windshield survey, a proposed district boundary was established and generally corresponds to the above referenced streets: W. Wilbarger Street, Noton Street, 5th Street, and Railroad Avenue. The period of significance was determined to be ca. 1870–1950. This range includes the approximate date of the earliest identified residence and extends to the mid-twentieth century prior to the development boom of the post WWII years and the proliferation of ranch style houses in the 1950s and 1960s. This period generally corresponds to the initial development of Pflugerville beginning in the 1870s and continues through its peak growth that continued until after WWII. All resources of historic-age located within the proposed historic district boundary and constructed within the established period of significance were evaluated at the reconnaissance level and were assigned a preservation priority of high, medium, or low. Those resources identified as high and medium preservation priority are considered to be contributing to the potential district, while those identified as low priority are considered non-contributing. A total of 75 resources were recommended as contributing to the potential historic district.

Image 51. Contributing resource at 302 S. Third Street, proposed Pflugerville Residential Historic District

Three of the resources within the proposed district were previously identified and determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT, including the residences at 112 W. Pecan Street, 100 S. 2nd Street, and 403 W. Pecan Street (individually addressed in Section VIII.A.). Three additional resources within the proposed district were previously identified through neighborhood surveys in the THC Atlas (see Table 3). These include the Albert Pfluger House (300 N. 5th Street), the Banner House (101 Pfluger Street), and the H.H. Pfluger House (101 Hall Street). No previous NRHP recommendations were made for these three resources, but they were all evaluated as high preservation priority in the current survey and are contributing resources to the potential historic district.

The proposed Pflugerville Residential Historic District includes the residential core of historic Pflugerville spanning both sides of W. Pecan Street. It represents a cohesive neighborhood of historic-age residences that reflects the evolution of Pflugerville from a small farming community in the 1870s to a bustling railroad town in the early twentieth century. The potential district is recommended NRHP eligible under Criteria A and C in the areas of community planning and development and architecture. A map of the proposed district, with contributing resources and preservation priority evaluations, is included in Figure 6 in Appendix C. The individual contributing resources are included in Table 6.

IX. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR FURTHER WORK

IX.A. Reconnaissance Survey Area – Recommendations for Further Work

Due to the nature of the reconnaissance survey area with numerous large parcels, extensive setbacks, and heavy foliage, a number of the properties identified through CAD research as containing resources of historic age were not fully or sufficiently visible to photo-document or evaluate during the field survey for this report. Additionally, a small number of resources may have significant historical associations and are recommended for further research in order to fully assess for NRHP eligibility. The following recommendations for these resources are divided into two categories:

- Medium Priority – Undetermined NRHP Eligibility – resources at least partially visible from the public right of way that were assigned a medium priority rating but whose NRHP-eligibility could not be adequately determined or further research is recommended to determine possible historical significance; and

- Medium Priority – Undetermined NRHP Eligibility – Not Visible – resources that were not visible from the public right of way.

IX.B. Reconnaissance Survey Area – Medium Priority – Undetermined NRHP Eligibility

A total of four properties containing multiple resources identified within the reconnaissance survey area were assigned a medium priority rating and an undetermined NRHP-eligibility status due to limited visibility. These resources are listed in Table 7 and further addressed in the narrative text below.

Table 7. Reconnaissance Survey Area – Medium Priority – Undetermined NRHP Eligibility Properties

Parcel ID	Address	Property Type

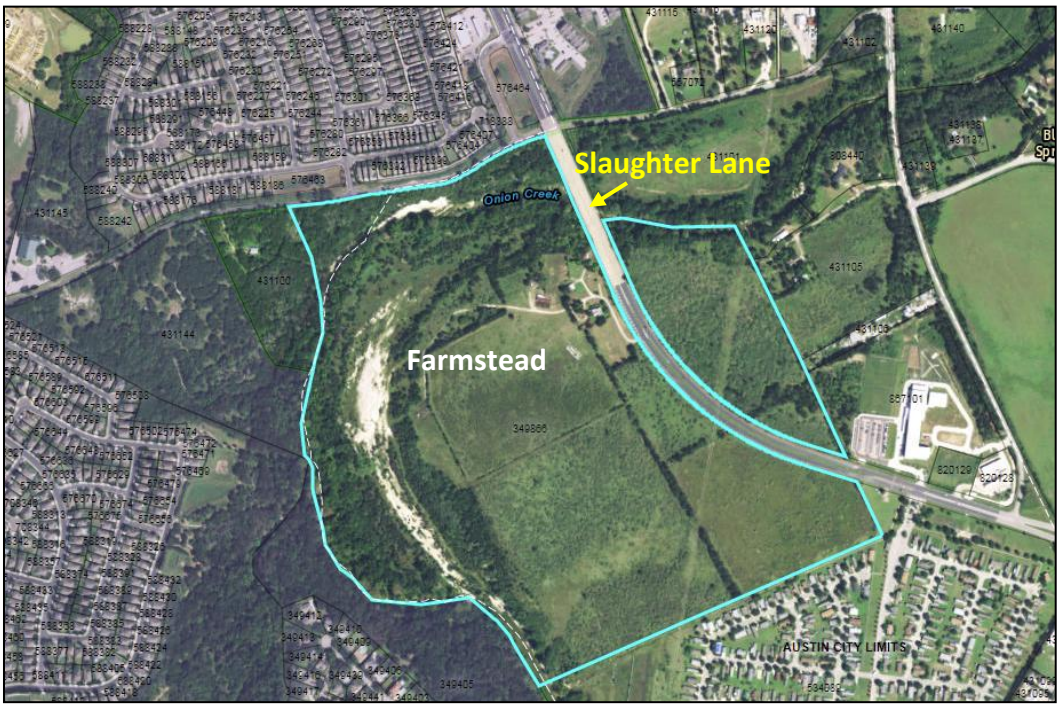
Parcel ID 482546 – Queen Anne House

The property at 20000 Keilman Lane in Pflugerville is a ca. 1900 Queen Anne-style house that is located on a parcel of land at the end of a small rural street characterized by scattered mid-twentieth-century houses and undeveloped land. The house is significantly older than the surrounding residences and was most likely part of a former farmstead. The house was visible from the right of way and appears to have retained fair integrity despite replacement windows and an addition to the existing wrap-around front porch. The property is likely part of a former farmstead and merits further research to determine possible significant historical associations.

Parcel 349866 – Farmstead

The property at 1101 E. Slaughter Lane consists of at large tract of land with at least one residence and several outbuildings that appear to comprise a historic-age farmstead. It is located on Slaughter Lane between I-35 and Bluff Springs Road. The CAD year-built date for the main residence is listed as 1920. The property was difficult to see from the right of way due to a large setback and trees. The main house appears to be an early twentieth-century side-gabled residence with an end chimney of brick, a shed-roof front porch that was enclosed ca. 1940, and a rear gabled addition. The house is clad in wood clapboard and board and batten siding, and windows appear to be original six-over-six-light wood sashes. A second ca. 1945 house is also located on the property. Two wood and metal clad outbuildings were partially visible, but at least three large barns of historic age were identified on Google images and were not visible during the field survey. A large portion of the property appears to remain in agricultural use. Access and further research is needed to fully evaluate for NRHP eligibility and to determine possible significant historical associations.



Aerial 9. Farmstead at 1101 E. Slaughter Lane (Parcel 349866)

Aerial image and data from Travis Central Appraisal District: http://propaccess.traviscad.org/mapSearch/?cid=1&p=349866

Parcel 785642 – Former Industrial/Railroad Buildings

The large parcel at 500 E. Pecan Street in Pflugerville contains two large metal-clad buildings of historic age that appear to have been associated with the former rail line that extended along the western edge of the property, beginning in 1904 with the arrival of the MKT railroad. Both have standing-seam gabled roofs and large metal doors, and the larger building has covered loading docks. The buildings appear to be abandoned, but they are visible on historic aerials as early as 1954 and likely date to the early twentieth century. Further research and access is needed to fully assess for NRHP eligibility, but it is likely that the buildings are significant for their association with railroad development in Pflugerville.

Parcel 845329 – Farmstead

The property at 1235 FM 685 in Pflugerville consists of a large approximately 130-acre parcel that includes a house and several agricultural outbuildings. The resources were only somewhat visible from the right of way due to a large setback. The house appears to date to ca. 1920 and features a hipped roof of composition shingles and wood clapboard siding. A gabled roof with wrought iron and rough wooden supports appears to have been a ca. 1955 addition. Other visible structures included a ca. 1930 shed with a metal roof and vertical wood siding, a large metal silo that does not appear to be of historic age, and a large barn with a standing seam metal roof. A review of Google images revealed two additional outbuildings with metal roofs that were not visible during the field survey. Much of the property appears to remain in agricultural use. Access to the property is merited to fully assess the integrity of the resources for potential NRHP eligibility as an intact farmstead.

IX.C. Reconnaissance Survey Area – Medium Priority - Undetermined NRHP Eligibility – Not Visible

Forty-three historic-age resources within the reconnaissance survey area were not visible from the public right of way during the field work for the survey (see Appendix E for all inaccessible parcels). These resources were assigned a preservation priority of medium pending further research and potential access to the properties to fully assess for NRHP eligibility.

X. CONCLUSION

The consolidation of data from the previous TCHC and TxDOT survey reports into a single database and GIS mapping platform will provide ease of access for future researchers and the general public. The information will be made available on the TCHC website.

For the historic resources survey of areas not previously inventoried, the project area included several unconnected sections of eastern and northeastern Travis County between SH 45, SH 130 and the Austin City Limits or ETJ, including a small section near I-35 and FM 1327 in southern Travis County. The purpose of the current survey was to include those areas outside the city limits of Austin and the ETJ that had not been previously inventoried in a prior TCHC survey report of Travis County. The survey area included a variety of communities, resource types, and both rural and more recently developed environments. A number of mid-twentieth-century resources and neighborhoods within the survey area were evaluated at the windshield survey level as pedestrian examples of ranch style houses and manufactured homes that lacked significance.

The reconnaissance survey area yielded a number of architecturally and historically significant properties including residences, churches, farmsteads, and bridges. In addition to those previously identified by TxDOT and the THC, eleven new resources and one historic district were evaluated as high priority and recommended NRHP eligible. Four additional properties were assigned a medium priority rating based on limited access and visibility and merit further research and access to fully evaluate. Forty-three properties were not visible during the field survey and could not be assessed.

With the exception of Pflugerville, much of the reconnaissance survey area remains fairly rural in character despite encroaching modern development. In particular the survey area within the bend on the south side of the Colorado River near Del Valle has retained a sense of remoteness from development and nearby highways and includes several significant agricultural properties. Although recent residential subdivision and commercial construction within the last two decades has occurred in some locations, the overall character of much of the survey area remains comparatively rural. A number of agricultural properties remain active, and many individual resources feature large parcels with widely spaced structures. As Travis County continues to grow, development pressure will undoubtedly bring about changes to these areas. Additional research and evaluation of those properties that were not accessible during this current survey effort will provide a broader framework for understanding and preserving the significant history of these sections of Travis County.

Architectural Description

Cemeteries previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT in report: SH 130 EIS From I-35 North of Georgetown to I-10 in Seguin, Williamson, Travis, Caldwell, and Guadalupe Counties, Texas, 2001. El Rincon Cemetery also previously evaluated in TCHC's "Mexican-American Settlement Survey, Travis County, 2016." Significant for association with early Hornsby family and the establishment of community of Hornsby Bend in 1832. Earliest burials date to 1836. A portion of the cemetery (El Rincon) includes Mexican-American burials and was established by Hornsby family members ca. 1900. Located on private parcel that was not accessible during the field survey for the current project. Photos of Hornsby Cemetery courtesy of Historic Buildings Survey for above referenced TxDOT report. El Rincon Cemetery photos courtesy of Beth Valenzuela and the above referenced Mexican-American Settlement Survey report.

Architectural Description

Agricultural property identified as Thunderbird Farm and previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. Consists of two large parcels with multiple resources and active agricultural fields. TxDOT identified the following eligible resources: a road/slab crossing (ca. 1940), a residence (ca. 1945), a slab with culvert (ca. 1940), a commissary (ca. 1960), a swimming pool (ca. 1960), an entrance gate (ca. 1940), a culvert (ca. 1940), a second slab with culvert (ca. 1940), a barn (ca. 1940), and a water trough (ca. 1940). Additionally, a ca. 1960 ranch house was also evaluated during the fieldwork for the current survey.

Architectural Description

Significant ca. 1870 Queen Anne-style house on Sprinkle Road. Currently vacant and not completely visible due to setback and foliage. Visible features include a cross-gabled roof with composition shingles, an interior brick chimney, dormer windows, and metal awnings over some of the upper-level windows. House is clad with wood siding and appears to have original wood-sash windows. A side porch appears to have been enclosed sometime in the early 20th century. Property is one of the oldest remaining in the former community of Sprinkle. Due to apparent age and architectural significance, it may have been associated with community founder Erasmus Frederick Sprinkle. Merits further research.

Architectural Description

Congregation established in 1874 and land for church and adjacent cemetery donated by prominent area resident William Bohls. Frame church building constructed in 1875. Additional land donated to church by William Pfluger in 1889. Frame church replaced by brick building in 1909 that burned down in 1928. Existing brick church building constructed in 1929. Several additional structures have been built on site including a parsonage/education building (1963), tennis court (1971), maintenance building (1976). Remains an active congregation that has served the Pflugerville community for over 140 years. Building exemplifies the early 20th-century English Gothic Revival style.

Architectural Description

Ca. 1870 residence previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. Appears to have been constructed as duplex or "twin" house with symmetrical façade that originally included a "mirror image" door/window configuration on each half of front elevation. Includes two original front entrances flanked by a window on either side; one of the central windows has been converted into a third entrance door; side gabled-roof with a high ridge and a single interior brick chimney; additional half-story located within the attic; half-hipped front porch with simple wood posts; wood clapboard siding; and original, narrow four-over-four-light wood sash windows. Currently used for commercial purposes (Frost & Lawrence Interiors). Contributing to potential historic district.

Architectural Description

Vernacular home constructed in 1875 for early area settler William Pfluger (one of the sons of Henry Pfluger for whom Pflugerville was named). Two-story limestone residence with rear two-story frame addition added shortly after initial construction. Identified in THC neighborhood survey in 1984 and limestone walls noted as 16 inches thick. Property includes a large wood-framed barn and ca. 1940s wood-framed garage. House is located on a large parcel that remains partially in agricultural use, but vicinity has been built out with modern suburban development. Remained within Pfluger family for five generations until 1995. Identified on Preservation Texas' Most Endangered List in 2012. Pfluger Haus Foundation has been raising funds to restore it since 2009.

Architectural Description

Large (700-acre) parcel abutting eastern bank of Colorado River historically associated with early setter Thomas H. Jones (ca. 1850s) and A.D. Bolm (ca. 1926). Property contains multiple structures including three houses (one ca. 1920s, the other two ca. 1940s), a ca. 1940 garage, several barns, and additional outbuildings. Barns, outbuildings, and ca. 1920s house visible on 1937 Tobin aerial. Largely not visible from right of way. Owned by descendents of Bolm family through at least 2005; now part of Baily Ranch Holdings LLC. Property also reportedly contains a cemetery with burials of early Henry and Shaw families. Per historian Lanny Ottosen, there are no remaining burial markings for the cemetery.

Architectural Description

Two-story limestone residence constructed ca. 1852 for area landowner Thomas H. Jones. Land is associated with early Van Zandt family, whose daughter Maria Louisa Van Zandt married Jones. Property has been identified in THC neighborhood survey and recorded in three architectural studies in 1969, 1980, and 1988. Reportedly one of the oldest extant houses in this part of the county. Refer to survey report for significant historical narrative from information provided by historian Lanny Ottosen. Property purchased in 1926 by A.D. Bolm who remodeled house using materials salvaged from other historic homes. Front porch and rear shed addition are from 1920s remodel.

Architectural Description

Property consists of 57-acre parcel formerly part of the Albert Hergotz homestead (house and farm). Albert Hergotz (1847-1941) was an early settler who emigrated to Texas from Germany in 1870. Parcel spans western bank of Colorado River and includes eight structures: the ca. 1880 Albert Hergotz house (wood-framed), a second smaller house (wood-framed), several barns/outbuildings, and an outhouse. All structures are in states of disrepair and were not visible or accessible during the field survey. However, photos were provided by historian Lanny Ottosen from a field visit he conducted in May 2017. One additional resource was recorded during the current field survey: an additional ca. 1900 house at the northern end of the property. Although vacant, the structures collectively represent a largely intact late 19th-century farmstead. Photos courtesy of Lanny Ottosen.

Architectural Description

Queen Anne-style house constructed in 1913 for Gottlieb William Bohls (1878-1961) and his wife Bertha Timmerman. Built at its current location on their 95-acre farm north of Pflugerville. Property sold to brother Otto Walter Bohls, Sr. in 1925. Remained within the Bohls family until deeded to the City of Pflugerville in 1993. Now serves as Heritage House Museum in Heritage Park. Significant example of early 20th-century Queen Anne house and for its association with early pioneering Bohls family. Second house adjacent to Bohls House is a ca. 1915 Craftsman bungalow that was relocated to the site sometime after 2015.

Architectural Description

Ca. 1900 Queen Anne-style home and adjacent barn located within a residential subdivision of ca. 1970s manufactured homes. House features a steeply-pitched hipped roof with projecting gables, an interior brick chimney, and front and rear dormers. House is clad in wood siding, has half-hipped front porch with turned wooden posts and decorative brackets, and original two-over-two-light wood sash windows. Large wood-framed barn located on parcel next door and used for vehicle storage. Oldest remaining resources in an area otherwise characterized by late 20th-century residential development.

Architectural Description

Ca. 1900 house associated with early African-American settlers Jack and Mary Dodson, who came to Manchaca area ca. 1900. They established a meat marker and molasses mill and constructed the house. Jack Dodson donated land for Dodson Park (located where Mancahca Elementary School is today) that was the site of yearly Juneteenth celebrations for decades. The Dodsons were among a number of African Americans who settled in the Manchaca area after the Civil War and into the early 20th century. House is now used for commercial purposes as the It's About Thyme Nursery.

Architectural Description

Ca. 1850 vernacular Greek Revival-style house constructed for Nicholas McArthur on a large parcel still in agricultural use. Research provided by historian Lanny Ottosen conveyed the story of the property that has remained within descendents of the same family for over 160 years (Nicholas McArthur to daughter Mary Elizabeth McArthur and son-in-law William Jasper Sneed to grandson William Graham Sneed and wife Emma Hergotz, and to their daughter Fannie Simnacher, who recently passed away in 2016 at the age of 104). Property is a Texas Dept. of Agriculture Family Land Heritage Program honoree. Property includes the ca. 1850 house, non-historic barn, historic outbuildings and a ca. 1936 house (not visible during field survey). Also contains Sneed-McArthur Cemetery and possible unidentified slave cemetery.

Architectural Description

Segment of the Old Austin to San Antonio Post Road previously determined NRHP eligible by TxDOT. Extends from its intersection with I-35 (Travis County) south to Main Street in Buda (Hays County). Established ca. 1918 and served as an early paved automobile route between San Antonio and Austin. Constructed using federal funds as part of the 1912 Post Office Department Appropriations Act, which led to the development of a state transportation department for each state receiving federal funds. Corridor remains largely undeveloped today despite proximity to I-35.
